

Alliance of International Aromatherapists Annual Report

2010

Moving Aromatherapy Forward
With Vision and Action

Highlights of 2010

Lora Cantele President

In reflecting on this past year at AIA, I am proud of the progress we have made. We held terrific teleconferences throughout the year; improved the application for schools applying for AIA recognition; have created some new member perks; established a fundraising committee; and have begun laying the foundation for the next conference and the AIA Journal. In addition, we have increased our membership and volunteer base; strengthened relationships with other aromatherapy organizations; increased our representation internationally; and are well underway with giving the AIA website a new facelift and providing some additional member benefits.

With great pride the AIA Research Committee awarded a Research Grant to Pam Conrad, RN, BSN, PGd, CCAP, for the proposal “Does aromatherapy treatment reduce anxiety and depression in high risk post partum mothers, and if so, which method (hand massage or inhalation) is more effective?”

This grant was made possible by the generous dedicated donation from member Debbie Freund. Ms. Conrad will present the results of her research at the 2011 AIA International Aromatherapy Conference.

Educational Programs to enrich aromatherapy knowledge: Our monthly teleconferences provided the highlight of our educational achievement this year. The programs are filled with vital information and educational topics provided by professionals in aromatherapy and related healthcare fields. Audio CDs are available to members and the public of all these programs.

Highlights from teleconferences:

Overview of the Alliance of International Aromatherapists

The Alliance of International Aromatherapists (AIA), a membership based non-profit 501(c)(3), is a visionary organization formed for the purpose of providing public education through scientific research and educational programs.

Our Vision

The AIA is the leading international aromatherapy organization making aromatherapy a readily accessible and respected holistic healing modality.

Our Mission

AIA unites aromatherapists from around the world to advance research and professionalism within the aromatherapy industry. As a result the public has the option for a safe, natural and complementary form of health care.

Our Goals

- Provide education to the public using scientific-based research and traditional information.
- Promote responsible use of aromatherapy.
- Inspire excellence in educational standards for aromatherapy training.
- Serve as a leading resource for evidence-based aromatherapy research for medical and wellness care professionals.
- Bring conventional medicine and natural therapies, with emphasis on professional aromatherapy, into a more harmonious relationship.
- Serve as a resource for the furtherance of professional education and interconnection of serious practitioners of aromatherapy.
- Serve the public, researchers, educators, healthcare professionals, industry, and the media.

Finances

The AIA generated revenues of $17,516 with expenses, including cost of goods sold, of $17,045 for the year ending December 31, 2010, resulting in a net operating loss of $184. No salaries are paid as this organization operates solely by volunteer services at this time. Memberships and donations accounted for $14,680 in revenue (84% of total revenues); and program services consisting of product sales, advertising, school recognition, and the international conference generated $2,836 in revenue (16%).

AIA did not escape the affects of the economic challenges in 2010. In order to respond to that situation, AIA implemented a conservative budget for 2011 and will continually monitor its progress towards a balanced budget. In addition, an international conference is planned for 2011 for which AIA looks ahead to build its financial foundation.
